Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, May 7, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

You now have all the elements; the Master has done his work, it's up to you to do yours.

We have encouraged you, advised you a lot. We have emphasized your faults so that you can correct them.

What more can we say? If you all do your level best, all will be well.

Your Master drains himself of strength to satisfy you and to carry out what he came on this Earth for.

He only yearns for rest.

Think of what my son is doing for the love of us, of you and humanity.

Return this love to him, for he needs it.

The life of a Master of this level requires very great courage and a sense of abnegation, which you cannot imagine.

See what he has just done for the Mission. May your gratitude and your love support him in his task that is so heavy. He needs it.

Feeling one's Master's happiness, abhyasis' happiness, can only support and encourage him – in spite of his pressing desire to leave – to pursue his way for the greatest good of all.

Be happy to have such a Master. One day, you will realize how great he is. Open your eyes and give thanks.

Babuji