A Fourth Revelation

In these messages, we must go beyond the prevailing understanding of similar phenomena. They are given in view of a future more open to this possibility of communication.

"The more ancient writings, whose impacts still endure to date, were inspired in the same way, without worrying about the spirit of the present time.

"Those messages belonging to the 'Correspondence' cycle have their own characteristic which we will come back to. They follow their own trajectory and we accompany them in their course.

"Many repetitions are necessary, as we have already said both in our books and in these writings, so that certain truths can be well understood and assimilated by the reader. When read and read again, a small sentence can sometimes bring awareness of a reality that was not obvious for the reader.

"The time will come when men will find the taste for reading. Life on the Earth having changed a lot, they will return to the source of knowledge where their thirst for it will lead them.

"Our brothers in spirituality will also feel the thirst for this knowledge. Their research in this field will be insatiable. In their current mode of existence, our aspirants, caught in the movement of this hectic life oriented towards illusory values, do not devote much of their spare time to reading inspiring works. They do their level best and they engage in a very commendable search, with the best of intentions.

"We would like to encourage them to do more as their spell on Earth does not give them enough leeway to progress towards the goal. They are proceeding, and we are helping them. May they all be blessed."
