Let us take advantage of this beautiful space of peace and harmony occurring in you, in view of a beneficial contact. Your heart needs it, my child; it is rejuvenated through the effects of grace. Man needs these moments of respite when he can let himself go in a deep meditation, in all serenity. The principle is always the same. Is there any better way of balancing one's life, between the material and the spiritual [aspects]! It is often when he needs them most that man neglects the resources at his disposal. Recourse to faith is a privilege; putting faith into practice through an adequate way is a blessing, which is worth exploiting correctly and steadily.

"Our ashrams are spreading all over the world. Though yet very few, they are points of light catalyzing strong vibrations that help our brothers, and by extension, a privileged perimeter. Thus the framework of a new form of life more adapted to coming times is being established, [times] when men will be able to proportion their activities according to the requirements of a genuine spiritual process. These places intended for gathering together have an unquestionable importance. Our brothers should not neglect it. Do they realize what happens in a meditating assembly? It seems not, their perceptions not being refined enough.

"Our Mission is proceeding as foreseen. The majority of our aspirants are faithful and convinced of the effectiveness of the system. They love their Master. They refer to him, having understood the necessity of his incarnation among them. In this difficult life, it is good for human beings to turn to the higher forces capable of changing their destiny. All are working towards that goal."
