Monday, February 9, 2004 - 10:00 AM

Everything is set up slowly on Earth; the great divine plans also follow this pace, by adjusting to circumstances. Our Mission is being built accordingly; we are advancing step by step while overcoming the difficulties that are bound to happen here below. The march of time sweeps away any obstacle in the way of a higher will, which always ends up prevailing.

"Men are not the masters of the world, as some of them think. They often end up discovering it, and this principle applies to all levels. They forget their ephemeral lifespan and the smallness of their means, vis-à-vis the divine power that can wreck, in one moment, their most daring constructions. Nothing resists this force. Man is only a tiny toy vis-à-vis this great devastating breath manifesting itself where it is not expected or in an unexpected form. That is how laws are made, and humans cannot grasp all the underlying reasons. Should that be possible, they would not take account of them; incorrigible, they believe they are superior, taking account of no warning.

"They are endangering the planet. Caught in a system that seems irreversible to them, they continue blindly. Only the final outcome will be able to put an end to their devastating practices. This world is affected by a wind of madness. People do not listen to our messengers, their voices rise in a desert of indifference and the pace of this movement seems, so far, to be quickening.

"Let us continue to make progress on our concerns relating to our way: the spiritual achievement of our brother and sister abhyasis having understood where the main things were, which have nothing to do with the material profit prevailing on this Earth. Each one, sooner or later, finds one's way; may it please God that it be so!"

Babuji