Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Monday, March 1, 2004 – 10:00 a.m.

Controversies have always existed on this Earth. Men are like that, limited to their own judgements that are often tinged with base and contradictory sentiments in which they wallow. They live entrenched in convictions that each one of them believes to be right. It has been like that from time immemorial. As humanity is characterised by the diversity of opinions, controversies also manifest themselves within our Mission and no one can avoid it.

"Wisdom is not a striking feature of humans, including abhyasis. A spiritual way cannot unify the way of thinking in a group; that is not our goal. Everyone knows it, since they have experienced it. They follow us for what we propose to them, the need of which they feel very deeply inside themselves. Unity is available on these higher levels for those who can attain them, and this is also where our activity takes place. Each person's freedom is to be respected; that is our motto, insofar as the person complies with our ethics.

"We propose and our aspirants agree, or not, to follow our teaching. If such is not the case, they will incur no wrath. Our system cannot be to the liking of everyone. People who can recognise themselves in it are those who are ready to embark on the climb, under the higher competence of the Chosen Guide. As the egregore of our Mission is growing, it is securing the Mission's place in a satisfactory manner. All contribute to it through their work and they benefit from its beneficial effects by divine grace. Thus is the power of cohesion in this area."
