Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Friday, April 9, 2004 – 9:30 a.m.

This world has gone mad: minds are filled with hatred and rebellion. Unhappy with their lives, many human beings are looking for an outlet, and they get bogged down in base feelings that run counter to an evolution that is necessary for their blossoming.

"True values are generally scorned; the lure of gain prevails at the expense of those who are struggling hopelessly under tragic conditions, particularly in certain countries where poverty is distressing. Poverty has always existed in this world, but the gaps are so obvious and could be narrowed to a certain extent. Karmic laws have a bearing on these issues, thus are the rules of evolution, but their effects are aggravated by humans' negligence and indifference.

"Humanity is sinking, though it is nearing a pivotal and decisive milestone when everything can tip to this side or the other, to the good or the bad. We are working towards its evolution. 'Great oaks from little acorns grow', so you say! We do not despair. Our action is intensifying in hearts that are ready to move to action on a more sustained basis, both on their personal and collective journey. Setting an example pays off; anyone can help their brother so long as they respect him, without seeking to impose on him that which is out of his reach.

"Our spiritual movement will be a great comfort to many people in search of a system suitable for them, in a context of broadmindedness and personal freedom that is appreciable in many respects in this world where influence and domination prevail in all human circumstances.

"May peace be established here below!"
