Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Tuesday, April 13, 2004 – 10:00 a.m.

Collective awareness about the realities of this world is desirable, especially the realities related to human nature. Such awareness is dawning on the horizon of this new era, bringing hope for many human beings in search of the truth – in particular, about their real nature. Not having the expected answers on this point, they feel frustrated as they cannot piece together the puzzle capable of enlightening them.

"The most informed ones would like to gain further knowledge. They cross-check by comparing information coming from various sources. Will the truth thus become more obvious to them? Well-informed hearts are forging ahead while others, more timorous ones, remain very reserved for fear of the unknown. We do not want to trouble our brothers, but only to tell them that evolution means change, reappraisal on all levels and adaptation to a source of information capable of opening up their minds to reality.

"We are moving cautiously. Man is made like that: he wants to know, but he clings to his own certainties. They reassure him, in the absence of what he regards as evidence. It is not easy to infuse knowledge into hearts eager to know, yet timorous in the face of a reality that is currently beyond them. Let us act by elevating them vibrationally, by preparing them for future times very carefully, under the best conditions.

"May these cryptic remarks give them food for thought about human nature in search of its divinity, for which it must go through probationary stages likely to be unsettling. In the final analysis, God, in His infinite greatness, will recognise the hearts ready for the ultimate stage."
