Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Friday, April 23, 2004 – 10:00 a.m.

Regain courage, my child, if you can. Let us proceed together for some more time; your ability to tune in to us is intact. There are sensitive hearts that will value the content of these messages.

"Man's heart conceals secrets which he himself does not know. Their subtle essence will be in tune with the essence of our comments. At first reading they can seem insignificant, but they are able to hit the sensitive point of their target. All these sentences are not strung together without reason. We must repeatedly come back to the same issues by addressing them in a slightly different way, as the human being needs these repetitions which are meant to arouse awakenings in him.

"Here, the satisfaction of the intellect is not the primary objective; it is the spiritual heart that is particularly targeted. It extends to other spheres that also feed on this reading meant to foster the evolutionary work of the being. The Master is the coordinator of this action, which involves all of our aspirants and is aligned with the level of each one.

"A soul progresses slowly, at its own pace; the work being carried out in our way supports its blooming. Everything is being done with this end in view. All of this complex process escapes human understanding. How could the human being understand it and its multiple implications that exceed the framework of this incarnation? Everything that is done is justifiable; nothing is left to chance.

"Perseverance, confidence in the Master and surrender remain the highlights of any process. God is Great; may all our brothers reach the ultimate goal!"
