Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Tuesday, April 27, 2004 – 10:00 a.m.

Let your heart drink from the divine source. It is insatiable. How could it be otherwise?

"It chose its way a long time ago, the way of love, the only one which is suitable for it and which does not disappoint. Love's resources are infinite; it unites the hearts that open up to it and bestows graces on them. No equivalent exists in this world. It neither misleads nor disappoints; it brings together, it creates unity and it inspires valiant hearts, adorning them with celestial attire that can be recognised by informed eyes.

"Divine laws are the same for all, no matter whether a person is open to their prerogatives or not. They act for the good of each one, sometimes in a way which humans deem painful. These principles cannot be circumvented. We often revert to their impacts, whose causes we cannot exactly define without delving into the complexity of the system of successive reincarnations that are essential for human evolution.

"Admitting this necessity entails taking a big step forward in the acceptance of these laws and refraining from a negative attitude that would hinder their implementation. To follow a spiritual way is to open up to knowledge and its manifestations, which are revealed with time in a more comprehensible light. The way is long. It requires patience and perseverance, as there are many ordeals; they should not discourage anyone.

"The most convinced seeker can weaken when life seems unbearable to him in particularly painful circumstances, before he manages to overcome them. That is where grace comes into play, allowing the uncovering of that which had seemed insurmountable.

"Acceptance elevates the soul. Life is a tough school constantly knocking each one and instructing for their good. May all our brothers understand it, as no one can escape it, and may our blessings strengthen them."
