Let your heart brim over with joy today, thus removing any trace of miasmas that made it gloomy during the previous days. Think of all our brothers and sisters gathered together with the same spirit, the same goal: to serve the Mission through their simple presence in the large or small gatherings unifying all their hearts. None of our aspirants is alone; if in spirit he is connected to his Master, he thus takes part in this large mystical movement.

"Diversity strengthens the cohesion of the group; respect for one another being the determining element, which obliges each one to take a new look at oneself if necessary. Nobody is perfect, it is wise to admit it, and the imperfection of the other is useful to oneself, insofar as it enables the observer to react in the right direction. These great gatherings represent a power for the Mission, which confers benefits on each participant. They leave a mark of their action in its history, which is already characterized by the results obtained. Our way is gaining ground; the celestial powers are satisfied and the hearts of the Masters are delighted.

"Our incarnate son is up to the task, he is coping and is advancing in spite of everything and that is not always easy for him. His success is all the greater for the difficulties that he is trying to overcome. And everything is taken into account and valued, as it should. By holding to the course as he does, the Mission is heading towards its destiny, i.e., to take part in the great movement meant to redeem humanity which is yet in the making at the dawn of the new era and which will prevail at all costs. Days like this one are profitable; they set in motion positive forces benefiting everybody.

"The only objective is the development of this great movement for the redemption of the souls on the path; contributing to it is a grace. May all our aspirants become aware of it and be more committed, for their good and that of all."
