Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Monday, May 3, 2004 – 10:00 a.m.

To be listening to us is your mission; you have the necessary gifts for it. This perpetual heart-to-heart enables you to receive what can be included in these writings intended for our brothers and sisters who are willing to read them. You manage to tune in to us under very special conditions that are quite surprising for whoever does not have this faculty, one which remains a mystery to most humans today.

"Tomorrow will be different in many aspects; man will become fully aware of the many resources of the brain not used by him so far. A kind of superior human being will emerge from the gutters, where humanity now stands, displaying its value. This current practice of an exchange between our medium and highly advanced levels of consciousness will no longer be a surprise; it will be part of a system of life completely exceeding what today's man can imagine.

"We are not forerunners in this field; this means was always used by the spiritual Masters in all ages of history. Their teachings, corresponding to a given period of history, were inspired in that way, without exception. The facts recur for the same reason: to help humanity in its progress, causing sufficient broadmindedness to uplift it to a higher status. The process is not simple, as people are reluctant to change. Truth cannot prevail as simply as one would desire.

"Progress is slow: we must proceed by taking into account all of the parameters likely to help our aspirants in their approach to spiritual work. The latter must clear their way to the realities of their being, in terms of achievement that is not limited to this Earthly representation. They must accept the idea of the plurality of the worlds and of their inclusion in some of them as a determining element of their personality."
