Saturday, May 8, 2004 - 10:00 AM

You will meet again; do not doubt about it. Aren't your contacts enough anymore? To love one's Master is strictly logic; doesn't your heart belong to him? This emptiness is growing in you, you cannot repress this movement; it is beyond reason.

"You cannot go towards him humanly, which adds to this feeling. It took you long to reach this stage where your entire being is subjugated by the power emanating from him and which keeps asserting itself. He himself does not assess really the impact of this force emanating from his divinized person. In the narrowness of your daily life, you have a feeling of emptiness, lacking what you live on other vibratory levels.

"Your heart calls him constantly and this emptiness will keep growing. So it is, you will not be able to avoid it, believe me. Caught in this spiral, it does nothing but following and lending itself to the movements of grace leading it into spheres where it did not think of going. That is what love has in store; before your heart, ours experienced all the meanders of love, letting themselves be invested for their greatest good.

"To love is the most beautiful gift which life can offer. Poor are those who do not know it in this particular form, love prevailing between human beings being only a rough idea of that which we refer to herein. Don't restrict yourself anymore, my daughter, let go your heart to loving its Master. Why would you like to frustrate it? Nothing more beautiful could happen to it.

"Do not fear anything. This kind of love cannot disappoint, it is out of Earthly time and it is imponderable. It will follow you wherever you may go, when your physical body is deserted. Be thankful for this distinguished grace, to live on love, isn't it the most beautiful destiny!"

Babuji