Don't you feel me every day in your heart? What more would you gain from my physical representation! Beyond this one, resides the reality of the being. What is expressed in these messages does not belong to this world and can only be perceived through the heart; this aspect is critical. Criticisms, which they may generate, will be mere mental fabrications to those of our readers who would not have gone beyond this stage. Why should we dwell on this negative aspect of the things? Nothing good can be built if one had to do so. We have said this often enough: humanity cannot really change overnight. What we are doing here will be very much appreciated in the future much more than could be imagined today. Therefore, let us continue our way as much as possible for as long as our scribe can work actively. It is a kind of priesthood, since it has priority over anything else.

"We are preparing your heart for a future meeting with your Master. In a way, you made progress in terms of one going towards the other and the meeting will be fruitful. This message has an emotional tone this morning. Could we communicate like this if, as you wish, I had to appear before you? Would your body withstand such a vibratory shock, when your perceptions are so refined, to the extent that we must protect you against your environment! My daughter, content yourself with our contacts; they fill your life beyond what you could imagine.

"You redistribute around you what you receive through them. That is how all the love you are capable of can be expressed. Take heart, my child, all is well like that."
