Sunday, May 30, 2004 - 10:00 AM

To my son,

"The whole of these messages constitutes a treasure. They all exist with one sole aim in view: to help our brothers. You have all leeway to act accordingly; the decisions are yours as for their disclosure. It is for you to decide the right moment for their publication. There is no danger in being limited to the pure and traditional teaching of our way. Some of our brothers may be surprised by the way in which these messages are given, however this fact remains in a tradition that is not new. They all must evolve in the tide of history of the world whose change is in the offing. Our medium never wished anything else but to remain anonymous; she is not interested in being in the forefront. She serves us with as much love and surrender as possible, as far as messages are concerned. They will represent a critical contribution to our Mission. Times are changing; it must be put in tune and answer the questionings of our aspirants, the number of which will keep increasing.

"You are leading this Mission, my son, masterfully; how best could we say that! It is sometimes amazing to see you acting and exhibiting your faculties in managing problems. Your experience is invaluable in many circumstances where it is advisable not to be misled by appearances. Our way must stick to what it is basically, without any kind of addition that would distract our brothers from the intended goal. This point is fundamental: leaving the door wide open to what does not relate to it would do a disservice to it.

"These messages will enrich our teaching; people's minds are opening out and it is advisable to go in that direction. We are by your side, my very dear son; your courage, unfailing in the face of difficulties and the workload, makes us happy.

"Our very special blessings accompany you. Let your heart be reassured: all is well."

Babuji Maharaj