Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Thursday, June 17, 2004 – 10:00 a.m.

Divine intentions design strategies concerning vast projects that cover the worlds, including this one, without them being identifiable by man. The manifestations belong to a great overall movement, which man cannot foresee and which therefore completely escape his control.

"His existence here below is short compared to eternity – 'a breath, a nothing, and nothing more', as was said elsewhere. That is it exactly: a manifestation of life in its evolutionary phase within the realm of matter. Science does not penetrate the true secrets that are decisive in an approach to the phenomena orchestrating the plurality of worlds. It basically lacks the essentials that would enable it to identify these secrets. This vibratory subtlety escapes science, and constitutes a data bank that it cannot possibly grasp.

"This impalpability is not understandable to men in their current state of knowledge. They cogitate, assume, and very often affirm, referring to Earthly concepts, meanwhile limited in their outlook. Anything that cannot rest on what they regard as evidence is groundless for them. The veil of illusion conceals from them great truths that cannot currently be known. Wisdom will have to prevail in this world before this condition changes. May it one day enlighten men entangled in the darkness of ignorance."
