Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

We only consider your heart, my child; it can catch our attention with the love emanating from it and its perseverance in following us. These conditions facilitate a 'graduation exam' that opens the appropriate doors. The human being must face his own personality and accept it by coming to terms with it to get the best of it. All the facets which characterise it are not necessarily to the taste of the person concerned; but he can then act accordingly and mend his ways.

"The spiritual practice helps to have a clear understanding of oneself and irons out undesirable harsh qualities. When considered from that point of view, a fault can also become a good quality when it is well utilised. To know oneself well facilitates the work of adjustment on oneself when necessary. Otherwise, what would be the point in being reincarnated!

"The complexity of human nature is full of meaning; to discover in oneself the manifestations of the divine presence opens up luminous prospects. Henceforth, life can no longer be seen in the same light. All becomes clearer and takes on a truer orientation once its final outcome is well understood.

"This process opens up horizons for the person concerned. Life is no longer reduced to the limits of this life; he defines himself differently. He tries to understand, to define himself: where does he come from, where will he go! This reflection pushes him to act and to be more and more committed, as his motivations are no longer the same. From life to life, the overall being is shaped, committed to a sublime ascent to the Immutable Splendour."
