Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Thursday, July 8, 2004 – 10:00 a.m.

Trust, in a spiritual process, is of primary importance: trust in the divine powers guiding the soul towards its fulfilment and in the action of the Master, the representative on Earth.

"Surrender results from it, fostering love in its most noble expression. When he has reached this point in the process, the aspirant feels carried, guided. He better understands his life, the twists and turns it can be full of, and the ordeals that are reserved for him. His questionings are no longer the same ones. The formula 'all has its raison d' être' no longer seems so abstract to him, and the divine laws are no longer so dreadful; not having enough hindsight to assess it, he accepts them.

"With practice, the purpose of his process becomes clearer to him, thus fostering awakenings. We see our faithful abhyasis making progress over time as well as all these actions geared towards the same goal, reinforcing the egregore of our way. Thus is created this mass of constructive energy appropriate to the spiritual development of all our brothers and sisters, whose sincerity is beyond doubt.

"Love attracts love, another energy, subtle and divine in its essence and capable of changing hearts. It is delightful to see this work being carried out in a way like ours within the framework of our Mission, which is relatively young in terms of its established time on Earth. The spiritual Master representing it, our Chosen Son, fills us with joy in all respects; we can repeat it once more.

"All our blessings are with him."
