When you come to join us, you will be amazed to see the true face of those you knew and loved. You will have pleasant surprises. Your life is heavy to bear in some respects, but you will realize that you were surrounded by beings of exception and you did not know it. The apparent simplicity of a person can hide treasures of a very great value. You have been very lucky on this plane.

"She who gave you birth is very luminous. Her courage and pragmatism in this incarnation had helped you to shape yourself and to have your feet firmly planted on the ground. It is what I wanted to give you as a present, today, by highlighting the situation of your then mother. Don't be sad by thinking of her sufferings, which have become yours today. You believed you understood her; it is by experiencing things in one's own flesh that one can really know.

"You all, one day or another, you will be confronted with the true suffering, yours or that of a loved one. It is in these difficult moments that life takes on its full meaning: you realize your limits, your helplessness to control certain situations; you become aware of the precariousness of life. While suffering in your body, you suffer in your soul; you become aware of other people's misery. The creature is weak and helpless in the face of ordeals. The only recourse is God. He is all-powerful. The only law to be respected in all circumstances is His, because, remember: all is nothing, God is all."
