Your vocation is to love, as you know. Isn't it the most beautiful one! It does not exclude many ways of serving, on the contrary, it gives them more panache altogether. We have apparently said everything about love. This rare energy is so very subtle, but the world desperately lacks in this, and yet, it proves to be necessary and salutary. As energy, it will find its acceleration at the required moment, thus changing the face of the world. It is in that, that changes will take place naturally, and elevate beings in terms of their vibrations. They will conform to other levels of consciousness more in line with the new era.

"Seen from that point of view, everything seems simple. Man is not basically bad, therefore a great majority will adapt to the circumstances, leaving behind them miasmas of exacerbated materiality. Humanity has reached a point in its history where it has drifted beyond limits, thus triggering an irreversible phenomenon of change. Thus has it always been since time immemorial. Many upheavals have already occurred concerning life on Earth and the changes it underwent, without them being known to men.

"Here and now, an act of this play is being performed, which is quite determining for their future. Will they be able to change everything in time? The future will tell. There are many men of goodwill."
