Our most faithful brothers form a great family of souls meeting again from life to life and going, for the majority of them, through similar experiences, in their spiritual quest. The same wave carries them, fostering their process. Countries, races are no obstacles; only the karmic line determines where and when this reincarnation must occur.

"All men are brothers but they do not want to know it, preferring to give free rein to harmful inclinations. A sincere approach, in a way like ours, must bring them closer: it is the goal of the big gatherings enabling them to become aware of their unity on the spiritual level, which is essential. A unique and same heart unites them, surpassing borders. A profound mystical impulse makes this wonder happen: the sacred union of souls going in the same direction. Seen from that angle, human divergences have little importance. When will men finally understand that they are equal in this world and before God? They keep erecting barriers: race, sex and social background being their pretexts to satisfy an authority constituting a kind of shield to their shortcomings. Following a spiritual way is also to understand the illusory side of these inequalities, which are the characteristics of humanity seeking a way out.

"May the time of liberation happen for all suffering souls."
