Wednesday, October 27, 2004 - 10:00 AM

The time will come when many aspects referred to in these messages will be proved. To believe or not to believe is one's individual choice; we cannot force anybody to follow our various recommendations. In all circumstances, choices are to be made depending on each person concerned who would act according to his inclinations. Free will exists. We will not challenge it. The motives of humans are varied; they have their own views of things to which they conform as a last resort.

"Regain stature, my daughter, come and recover strength on the summits where all is clear and simple, as long as one conforms to the existing rules. Here, all is stable; one can rely on the beings and the laws governing this great movement of life in its entirety, in the face of creation as a whole. Try to be focused on this median line capable of enlightening you and guiding you through the rest of your process. Beware of hasty decisions; you did not accustom us to that. We can understand your reasons and if you stick to them, we will accept them.

"We appreciate your courage and the rigour having allowed you to face up to things until now, without resignation being part of your way of being. Beyond human activities there is a place of peace and harmony which you can gain access to. Come and meditate there and find answers to your questions. Be at peace."

Babuji