Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, May 24, 1999 – 10:00 a.m.

An ashram must live, spiritually and humanly. Aside from the spiritual, you all must liven it up.

It is not reserved for a small group; you must make it attractive through meetings, exchanges concerning all that touches the Mission, along with theme days. Anything can be a pretext to create special moments among you. Try, through these contacts, to develop a more sustained fraternal activity, which will strengthen your bonds.

Your differences are only superficial; make efforts in this regard.

What is the point of applying yourselves in your practice if you fear rubbing shoulders with other personalities that can aggravate yours?

See in these contacts an excellent means of working on your weak points. You all have them.

Do not run away from these contacts with some of your brothers and sisters. Make efforts, go towards them with an open heart, ready to give love and to share while trying to understand them.

It would be a great success for all of you; it would put some balm in your hearts. Would you do that for the love of us? That would make us happy.
