Life on Earth is a long series of experiences and fights moulding the incarnate personality with a view to its evolution. This aspect should not be lost sight of, hence the necessary acceptance showing the level of wisdom of the person concerned.

It is not always easy to assimilate these principles. Throughout his life man is in search of a durable form of happiness, which he cannot find in this world. What he acquires through this quest of the Absolute, prepares him for other future experiences in other places having nothing to do with the material world. There, everything must be reconsidered with new determining elements for the subsequent stages.

"A well-led spiritual process places a being in the best condition of evolution. We will never insist enough on this aspect, although only the aspiration of the soul can give the desired impulse in this great project. Our aspirants are approaching a decisive point in their evolution. In our way, everything is done to meet that need; all converges in that direction and well beyond what they can imagine.

"The Master relies on a seemingly simple but effective system owing to the work being achieved on both sides. Nothing is acquired easily in this world. An incarnation constitutes a determining experience for a human being; it is up to him to become aware of it. Until the end of life, opportunities to grow can arise; it is never too late for that. All are helped and supported. God is Great and his compassion is immeasurable."
