

Thursday, December 23, 2004 - 10:00 AM

Not everyone can do what you are doing. Therefore, my child, keep thanking Him for the gifts you have received. You cannot currently assess the future impact of these messages; they do not exist yet for our future readers, but time will give them a choice place in our Mission. It will not take much for the communication to be established between the worlds. For that revelation to be eventually made to humans, a step is yet to be completed. That will be the case when the favourable moment comes.

"Each one must be satisfied with what it has. Differences between beings are justified by a noble aim, the major reasons for which they cannot grasp for as long as they are incarnate. The divine laws are unknown to men in the current state of their evolution. Would they understand them? Their extension [of those laws] goes very far beyond the limits of this world where everything is different altogether.

"We already underlined it: this world is to some extent an experimental one and the behaviours are studied and recorded with a view to helping humanity to progress. It is not the headlight, which it believes it to be, compared to certain planets where life is infinitely more advanced.

"When men have finally understood it, humility will then dawn within them, thus tempering, though a bit late as their excesses of all sorts have devastated the wonders of creation offered to them. A serious reappraisal will be necessary so that human beings can reach a higher level of consciousness. May they finally listen to the voice of wisdom."

Babuji