Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

My child, accept yourself for what you are in your physical body, in terms of the reactions it provokes in you. What is essential is secured: the Immutable Presence of the Divine in your heart must suffice to reassure you.

"Let yourself be carried like a leaf in the wind; does it know where it goes? Thus may your heart soar, being won over and surrendered to the breath which carries it!

"Its destiny does not matter. It is life in its endless renewal: it is born, it adapts and it changes as is proper. This is how it is, that's all. A being, through an incarnation, gets into a yoke restricting it to the Earth and to what it must do there. It loses the notion of its true identity; so are the divine laws and they cannot be transgressed. To accept one's destiny, without recriminations, shows a beginning of wisdom and respect towards the Almighty.

"It is not always easy to be fully oneself; one has to play the game of life with gratitude, whatever it is. Thus begins the way to an edifying and redeeming transformation."
