Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Sunday, January 9, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

May your heart, like the lotus that enchants your gaze, open you more and more to the divine light and to love, its privileged food. Let it be carried by this wave which now submerges it, making it vibrate with joy and gratitude. Look towards your Master, my child, and love him, infinitely. This kind of love knows no limit; it loses itself in the infinite, returning to the source in an eternal vibratory movement.

"It revives fervent hearts; it propels them into a different dimension, marking them for eternity. Loving that way is a grace; see how your Master can love and especially how he does not fear to say it. In this harsh world, where true values are scorned, this refuge remains within the reach of beautiful souls that have decided to devote themselves to this quest for the Immutable Beauty, for transcendence and the Ineffable.

"Words, these are only words, but their resonance in a sensitive heart finds a powerful echo capable of motivating it even more; thus it is given a choice place. Savour these moments; they are rare in their intensity. May they, like the trumpets of Jericho, make the walls of ignorance collapse and may they carry their music throughout the five continents, where in a distant future our Mission will expand according to the divine plans – hence the symbol of the five-pointed star intended to unite hearts in a great redeeming movement.

"May all be blessed and strengthened to that end."
