Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Friday, January 14, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

Would humans tolerate powerful machines being sent to the Earth on an experimental basis? These facts are fraught with consequences; the madness of humans is boundless. Believing they are alone in the universe, they act without discernment. Astrophysicists are getting more and more excessive; that will cost the whole of humanity dearly. The recently carried out feat will generate, once again, a series of reactions of cause and effect; it is in the nature of things.

"The cup must be drained to the last dregs, as they say, to expunge the evil. This movement cannot be quelled on the Earth; nothing will stop this frantic quest. Man is insatiable and his interest prevails over all. What importance does life have for him? It does not carry any weight for him. Only highly spiritual values could change the face of the world; what is going on today? Many human beings are awakening to a higher level of consciousness. It is a start on a path capable of propelling them to another level.

"The transition will be hard. It can only occur in a special context. The movement is starting and it will take its course. A spiritual way like ours is an integral part of it. Its vibratory niche is appropriate to present and future times. It pertains to that great redeeming project where an enormous undertaking remains to be done.

"In the current context, all our remarks can seem devoid of meaning; how could aspects that completely surpass today's man be taken seriously? Many of our brothers are progressing; the future has not yet started to surprise them. What is important for them is their personal work, focused on their spiritual growth."
