Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Sunday, January 23, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

How many times have you thought: what more can be said? That reaction is only human. The source is self-sustaining and could continue flowing indefinitely. With regard to these messages, we will continue for some time, if you can.

"It seems that all has been said and yet, we still have pages and pages to write informing men about the truth on Earth. Currently, some limits cannot be exceeded; otherwise the reader would be misled. Making him prepare himself, understanding the multiple effects of his personality in the various bodies that constitute him, is a good preparation for the future events that will occur on this planet.

"Our brothers have to shoulder this incarnation until the end, and this stage within our spiritual way can be decisive for them. This is essential in their journey, more so than satisfying a curiosity that would not teach them anything crucial for their personal evolution. Anything that can contribute to it is taken into account in our Mission; these messages are an example. Even if they are not accepted by all, they are evidence of our willingness to make them progress and lead them on the way to a reality still surpassing them, even if they believe they are already very well informed.

"The most open-minded, with regard to the truth, are far short of the target; our goal is to gradually bring them to it and enable them to surpass the current limitations characterising humankind. External elements will contribute to it;

it is in the nature of things. We are only following a planned evolution."
