Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Friday, January 28, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

Don't impose any limit to your loving heart – it is your strength and your most beautiful conquest. All the rest is useless – you can believe it.

What outlives the physical body when it returns to dust? The only title of nobility is the beauty of the soul acquired with the divine life, far from all human baseness. Let it be enthused and fed with a love that has nothing in common with human love. The latter fluctuates and is often disappointing as it lacks consistency to the extent that it cannot be compared to the former.

"The transports of a soul know no limit; it lets itself go with delight. To love infinitely is the secret; that subtle energy opens doors resisting any other pressure. Loving like that cannot be taught; it is a gift, to some extent, a divine gift granted for good reason, beyond human reasoning.

"The good aspects that outlive an Earthly life are precisely all that emanates from the beauty of a soul suffused with that kind of love which is said to be capable of propelling man beyond his limits.

"Love us, love your Master, my child. We are delighted by this bond of soul that makes you, from now on, remain in tune with him in the silence of your heart, as you do with us. Reluctance of the past is removed; communion can exist and be definitively established, in order to go beyond a simple communication.

"Don't be afraid by these remarks; remain surrendered and in the simplicity of the heart, which suits it so well. Be blessed, my child."
