Purity of heart, that is the wonder; it allows one to go through life with nimbleness, without being caught up by the blackness of the world.

"Blessed are pure hearts; they are like torches illuminating here and there the world of those living on this Earth, where light is shed on human turbulences. The evolution of the soul often goes through difficult stages, in this domain more than elsewhere, where nothing comes close to the imagination. Success is not only delightful, the peace of the soul is well worth some sacrifices.

"To follow a spiritual way is to have a profound yearning to rise. Here, there are no promises, no absolute directives – only personal commitment. Work and faith are the driving forces that motivate an aspirant towards the achievement of his quest. The Master's action supports the aspirant's perseverance and follows him step by step in his process, supporting it and thus crowning his efforts.

"Is there anything more beautiful in this illusory world than seeing a soul awakening to the divine splendour? Legions of angels strive to transform the world: they are themselves souls glorified by this eternal power activating the universe. Humanity is not abandoned to its fate, as the sight of it might make one believe. Thus are the ways of God in their innumerable manifestations, here below and elsewhere.

"The Sahaj Marg Mission has all of our attention. It bears considerable fruit, which will increase with time, therefore giving another view of a soul's incarnation on this Earth. The time of apotheosis is still a long way off, but time has no substance compared to eternity, as imagined by men."
