The Medium: "Is life on other planets as hard as here?"

It all depends on the way you have traversed. You go through periods of rest after each incarnation. They enable you to review your evolution as well as what you have achieved against your initial programme. We will not give more details on the question raised. Your free will often makes you go off track. You have very good intentions before, but, often, there is such a waste afterwards! By deviating from what had to be, you call into question your evolution plan. One has to start all over again so many times. Some people do not depart from the initial line and advance much more quickly; which makes us happy. Your failings are so deeply rooted in you that it is difficult for you to depart from them. This is why we insist. We revert to these same subjects all the time, at the risk of bothering you, but you should understand well that we do not delight in criticizing your behaviour.

"We love you; we are touched by your complaints and your desire to advance. But you so often behave like children who always do the same silly things and who do not want to recognize it. What can we do about you? You do not like to be criticized, your ego does not stand them and yet you would like to become saints?

"We try to give you the directions for use; it's up to you to consider. You must help us a minimum in our work. Even a high level Master cannot bring you to perfection by waving a magic wand. It's up to you to put in enough efforts; we will do the remainder. In that, like elsewhere, nothing is obtained without effort. Help us to make of you heroes, freed from any hindrance and ready to soar towards sublime summits."
