Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

You are not alone and ignored. You belong to this big family that is mentioned so often. You no longer need to seek your way. For a long time now, you have found it. In this path, your spirituality is developing; it grows to the extent of accelerating its pace. You love your Master; he lights your way and prepares it according to its asperities. You have met again for a specific purpose, which you are partly aware of as far as what you have to do consciously is concerned; the rest cannot help you in this world where everything is already so complicated.

"To make a success of one's incarnation is to first listen to this heart's voice whose wisdom does not mislead, provided it is dissociated from fantasy. This point is important: many of our aspirants do not go deeply enough into their practice and its leavening process as they are consumed with incorporating elements into it that correspond to current customs. The practice is self-sufficient when it is well understood. Trying to do several things at once is not a good solution. Only a true commitment, far from formulas that satisfy the intellect, can eventually bring a seeker who is divested of the useless towards detachment.

"Fashion is short-lived; there are many fashions in this century. Each one of them is more illusory than the last. They abound and some of our brothers do not resist them, believing they can find the truth in them. Truth is very far from these methods that claim to understand the human being. May they stick to what we propose to them and really devote themselves to it.

"This time is characterised by dissipation; man vainly seeks outside that which is inside. The treasure is in him and he does not know it, or at least he does not strive to reach it. Tomorrow, perhaps, he will discover it by deepening his quest, being carried away by the vibrations of the new era. Our way will then unfold to him in all its dimensions."
