Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Saturday, March 12, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

Gain stature, my child. See how everything is beautiful and life unfurls before you in all its splendour. Yes, living is a grace. It should be accepted with gratitude, even if it does not exactly correspond to what you would like it to be.

"Are you aware of what it allows you to develop in yourself? When a heart joins the way, infinite prospects unfurl before it. Henceforth, nothing can stop it. It feels drawn by a power that it cannot define, one that leads it in a redeeming plan of action, in which the divine power alone has the secret. To rise is to be refined, to surpass oneself, in order to eventually find one's true nature.

"Everything evolves around this principle that gives back to the being its true vocation: that of being united with the Divine. To find one's only homeland is, at the very least, to rise from life to life in order to eventually become one with it. Thus is achieved what must be, since humanity has deviated from its initial trajectory. All will regain its place at the proper time. The law of evolution is not the one recognised by men. It lies elsewhere, where men do not have access, as they are locked in the narrow circle of ignorance.

"All must change and will change; this is unavoidable. The movement of life is perpetual, although on the scale of time this cannot be perceived by humans. They must correct themselves and look further, beyond their current limits. The time has come for them to be released from the yoke of the illusory truth where they are complacently locked up, most of them not seeking to surpass a border hindering their progress.

"Having been fed with misconceptions for a long time, they have this excuse, but this time will soon be over. It is up to them to see and to act in time."
