Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Sunday & Monday, March 27 & 28, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

Let joy emerge within, my child. Your sadness is not suitable for a loving heart. During this contact, let joy gleam in it and carry you on the wings of love of which joy is the expression.

"Think of your Master; his task is not easy. He is also fighting, and your struggles are similar in terms of devotion and surrender to the Divine. He, the chosen one, must overcome difficulties; they are endless. Confronted with the material world, he copes with its disadvantages.

"This is how life on Earth is; nobody can escape its rules. Only openness to the foundations of life – its divine essence and its countless manifestations – gives a profound meaning to all that an incarnation conceals, and which remains hidden from the eyes of men. An incarnation on Earth is one of the many expressions of the total being, which is shaped in many ways.

"Each incarnation is an opportunity to take up a challenge. It is good to become aware of it and to work accordingly, which is not always easy. The greatest people have struggled and have also suffered oh so much; easiness cannot produce anything great, in any area. A human being in his naivety is in search of happiness, which is included in every life, but it is only a transient notion that does not constitute the essence of his path.

"True joys, the most durable and constructive, lie elsewhere in an increasingly profound connection with the Divine. It takes time to reach this lucidity and sufficient open-mindedness to conceive of life in terms of eternity, allowing one to put into perspective the many inconveniences of life here below."
