Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Friday & Saturday, April 1 & 2, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

Bonds of the past, those that link to God, remain strong from one incarnation to another. They help the inner being to shape itself and consolidate what already exists, thanks to the edifying aspect of a life offered up and whose action can be found in each one of them. To love and serve is a privilege which a soul can be honoured with, in terms of the continuity and the opportunities offered to it. To love is to give one's best, to offer unceasingly and to surpass oneself by being more and more united with the Divine.*

"The history of this world is a good illustration of these remarks. This world is full of known or hidden lives that deeply refer to higher forces, on whose behalf they generally act in obscurity.

"All has its raison d'être. We will never say it enough, since man generally neglects this aspect of things. He revolts and blithely storms about, blaming any and all for his troubles, neglecting to reason with wisdom. It takes time to bring a soul to perfection. Where would the beauty and greatness of the achievement be if it did not require so much effort?

"All these lives spent on Earth offer many experiences that have a special characteristic feature and that bring the being to express himself completely. This saint, a nun of the past who came to see you recently, deeply influenced hearts, and yours benefited from this when you were young. Small and ignored in her Carmelite convent, she nonetheless gave, by this example, a teaching of great wisdom in terms of the simplicity of its contents, which touched souls deeply, more than any other sophisticated writing.

"God attracts the hearts where and when He wants, as He sees fit."
