Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Friday, April 8, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

My son is steering the Sahaj Marg vessel with the greatest insight. He is wise, well established and empowered in this disconcerting world of matter. He is coping, and he manages our Mission by taking into account human requirements and the established rules. Great moral fibre is necessary to assume this role, whose importance grows with time.

"It is not easy to learn how to understand humans, their behaviours, and the disconcerting reactions they can have in certain circumstances when a devastating ego gets the upper hand. The battle, since it actually is one, can be difficult, especially when it consists of making the best of a being prevail.

"A method like ours is an invaluable help; it allows the best of a being to emerge, to be divested of all the things that burden it and slow down its evolution. All our brothers and sisters aspire to the best; by choosing our way, they have understood that it offers them a rare opportunity of self-revelation in terms of their rare and their highest aspects.

"Aspiration for the Divine is inevitably felt in a human being; sooner or later he experiences it and he then looks for a way to meet this requirement which has emerged in him. Faith in a higher force is the prelude; devotion takes place in various forms until the moment when he has found his way.

"Each one has his own way. God is Great – Alleluia!"
