Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Monday, April 18, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

The Master, in a way like ours, must act on all levels. His action is not limited to the spiritual level, which as such represents a huge job. He must manage the problems that characterise all human groups. There are a great many of them and they grow as the Mission extends into this world where things are often unnecessarily complicated.

"How can one escape what constitutes the rules of the game in a society that is hierarchical and fastidious on many points? Our aspirants have the opportunity to not only grow spiritually, but also materially by accepting some constraints in their relationships with others. Such constraints are capable of helping them reconsider the way they accept their neighbour in a circumstance such as this.

"Ultimately, where are the most important things for them? The sincere and motivated seeker will surpass these minor disadvantages; in the final analysis, he will consider only what is essential for his process. It is good to be confronted with these difficulties of relationships, showing the weaknesses of the human nature.

"A wise man surpasses them, taking into account only the best in each one: this common desire to rise – being united with the Master who enlightens with his wisdom and his greatness of soul a spiritual movement that corresponds to his stature. The latter keeps growing to expand our Mission, in the present and in the future.

"May our brothers, whatever their differences of opinion, be united in his wake for the best, for them and for all, welded and strengthened in this growing energy."
