Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Monday, May 2, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

Look at the progress made: these messages, like beneficial waters, will refresh the hearts of our brothers who are grappling more and more with the difficulties of life. They will all easily access its very simple writing style – all of those who will be able to receive them with humility, being open to a truth to which they will adhere, feeling it very deeply within themselves.

"This simplicity of content is essential. So many erudite books have been written, compelling them to also think in an erudite way, without truly touching their hearts. Man of the future will have abilities which will astound today's man who believes he has reached a very high level of knowledge.

"Everything is relative, and possible. A return to the time of the cave man would be most edifying on this point. The expansion of the soul will foster the unfolding of cerebral faculties, in relation to a dimension in which the vibratory level will produce an acceleration of the particles of life. This widening of consciousness will bring humanity to a higher stage of understanding, capable of making seekers dream.

"Our brothers, through their work, are preparing future times. They profit from a transmission whose purpose is to bring a spectacular transition to the human race. All is slow in this world; it is in the nature of things.

"We cannot currently change this pace. Many phenomena must occur, modifying the currents of energy that are the only ones capable of operating large-scale transformations, those associated with a spiritual openness proportional to an overall situation.

"May all our brothers become aware of the singularity of the times."
