Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Let your heart follow its inclination; do not repress it at all. What is more beautiful, more enthusing than to love like that? The soul must be able to exult, as much as it so craves, without restraining itself whatsoever. This is the only breath being offered to it: the breath of life, adorning it with all the graces.

"Confronted with the mysteries of an incarnation, with its share of joys and sorrows, the soul must seek the vital lead that brings it back to the source it misses for its blooming. It will have to surmount so many tests before finding its origins and merging into its natural environment.

"The lone traveller often dreams of finding his homeland; whatever may interest him on the course, this aspiration remains within him, very deeply. In the area that interests us here, the thirst for the Divine is the major attraction; by giving free rein to it, the soul exults, seeking a way that can carry it through the stages more quickly.

"When the soul finally finds its way, it is reassured and opens up, trustful in its future destiny. It knows it is not seeking in vain what it craves; it glimpses the goal and what awaits it. Going through ordeals more serenely, it knows they are necessary and crucial for its progress.

"Nothing is useless here below. Thus are the divine laws, inexorable but right in all their aspects. All is to be considered from this point of view: to live on faith and surrender is real wisdom. The great mystics have understood this; they are not mistaken.

"Working to help men is going in this direction; all must be done to open their eyes on this reality that surpasses the majority of them. The situation is not desperate. At the dawn of the new era, there is every hope, hence our action and our ceaseless blessings."
