Whispers from The Brighter World
A Second Revelation

Tuesday, June 1, 1999 - 8:00 a.m.

am here, don't worry. We know that you need some time to surface; this treatment is a bit annoying. We'll try to be less sombre today. Yes, we also have qualms and they increase by X numbers of times, compared to what you can experience on Earth. We cannot give any further details, our way of assessing things being completely different from yours. You should know that we go through very intense states across the wide spectrum of what you call emotions and which, for us, are of another type. We are in a completely different context which makes you think, in some circumstances, that we are insensitive to your difficulties.

"We are often deeply saddened, but we know that this stage is inevitable for you. You must go through this door. It is inescapable. This point is difficult to understand, but we assure you that it bears interest. The coach who sees his players pushing themselves to the limit in a playing field is happy. He can assess their resilience, their strength of character and their determination. He knows what he can expect of each one of them; yet he is not a torturer!

"For us, a great and beautiful soul requires all our attention. We do not feel sorry for its tests, whatever they may be. At the human level, we know that a strong soul will emerge from this painful stay on Earth, well armed to continue successfully its path, and we look forward to that. Be in acceptance and love; we return it to you."
