Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Wednesday, May 18, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

My son, in addition to his many capabilities, is a poet. His vision is tinged with the beauty emanating from all that surrounds him, wherever this beauty might be. Appreciating beauty on the Earth makes it possible to better endure the ugliness that manifests in many places, which we all would love to no longer witness.

"Humanity is in an exacerbated phase of violence and depravity. How far will it go? To what extremes will an acceleration of this phenomenon lead? We cannot say; it is included in a vast movement whose outcome will be spectacular. The divine laws operate in their own way; unforeseeable by man who hardly cares about them, they can be brutal and irreversible.

"What must be will be; let us continue in the way referred to herein. A spiritual quest is a response to evil; it tries to balance the forces, by assuming the positive aspect of this world. This action will be endless, as long as the world exists in the form known to man.

"To sensitise men to the work of the Divine, to Its presence, Its reality in them and in Its entire creation is not an easy task. Many hearts have understood and they are striving to do their level best and to approach a truth on which their evolutionary cycle depends.

"The purpose of our Mission is to help humans on a path that is difficult for each one, albeit different. The simplicity of our teaching is accessible to all; it is in its spareness and humility that it touches the hearts most particularly.

"May the divine light dawn in each one of our brothers."
