My daughter,

"We chose you, and this role is unique in our Mission. These messages will give rise to 'misplaced vocations' in the world. There will be no other mediums to succeed you. The substance of these writings will be preserved for future centuries and there will be nothing to add to it. Within our way each one has one's own place; in obscurity or openly, it doesn't matter. The whole is to be considered as a rare blessing for humanity, and for this reason, egotistic satisfactions are harmful.

"The union of all is vital. Save for the spiritual Master of the Mission whose role is absolutely essential, the roles of this person and that one are, and will remain, incidental. These writings have a beginning, and they will have an end; this is in the nature of things. Their seed will be beneficial to receptive hearts, those suffused with enough humility to accept them with gratitude and in all simplicity without judging.

"They operate well beyond man's primary perceptions. The human being of the future will more easily accept their principle, given his natural ability. Their simplicity of style is deceptive. These messages carry a vibration far surpassing these puerile considerations. As we have said, the essence of their action lies on another level. Wise are those who will recognise this and be able to enjoy their substantial benefits.

"It is in the spareness of these received ideas and in surrendering to the inner Master with faith and glorified love, that this seed will bear its best fruit.

"Be blessed, my daughter, and strengthened."

Babuji
