Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Don't let sadness overwhelm you to that extent. Let your heart put things into perspective and see the positive side of this incarnation, in spite of the trying aspects your physical body is going through. All that you are experiencing is enlightening, including this isolation which weighs so heavily on you.

"Take more and more refuge in the joys of the Spirit. They alone cannot fluctuate and disappoint like human beings. Think of all these writings; they will help our brothers of the present and the future, as we have said enough. The world will go through difficult times in the future; no country will be spared either the madness of men in the depths of exasperation, or the fury of raging elements.

"We maintain that the documents relating to these messages must be kept in various countries of the world to preserve them, including France of course. The arrangements made are judicious. What will remain on Earth after these plagues fall upon it? The refuge of faith will really mean something; it will prevail strongly after this great storm, which is inevitable in the current context where everything is going adrift.

"May our brothers remain stoic by leading their lives as well as possible, without neglecting their practice for fleeting joys satisfying human superficiality. Their time on Earth is precious. May this opportunity enable them to grow in wisdom, under the enlightened guidance of their Master."
