Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Saturday, July 9, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

My dear child, your soul inspires these messages. We find in you the ideal channel to give them shape and liven them in writing. This difficult period of your journey on Earth is also the most fruitful, spiritually. It has allowed this blossoming, the accumulation of these writings, whose existence will bear beneficial fruit in hearts.

"Loneliness and isolation are hard to bear in your state. Our attention cannot replace a vigilant presence by your side. Think of your Master; he is more looked after than you, but he too is alone.

"The painstaking path of an incarnation on Earth comprises many vagaries that will occur until the end; this is inevitable. The refuge of faith is the surest one; it opens up a wide range of possibilities and many human beings do not have it. Working toward one's elevation also works in a more general framework, in terms of contributing to the quality of the vibratory level of this world. Any action in line with this has a deeper sense, escaping the individual but globally constructive in terms of the work being carried out on Earth.

"A human being, while developing, has a very limited view of what surrounds him and the reasons for his ordeals. There is justification for all of them, though this is not really enough to reassure him.

"To rise above one's physical condition is an appreciable recourse in the most unbearable moments. Our compassion is great for this suffering world, and our struggles are ceaseless to alleviate its burden.

"May all men and women open up to the transcendence of the Spirit."
