Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Sunday, July 17, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

Time is passing and your motivation remains the same: to serve as per our wishes. Your role has taken shape with the passing of years. You are our daughter, blessed and chosen for this work; that is how it is. How could we not answer the call of your heart? It is planned like that and its mission is precisely to express itself.

"Our relationship pertains to this level, in terms of its unique aspect: love. It is inexhaustible and we could, each day, revert to this subject, but it would be wearisome. Humans are like that: they love to be carried away, or even to delight in futile pursuits, to find a balance suitable to their level of elevation.

"To awaken hearts to the inexpressible joy, this is the supreme goal, for which our forces are mobilised wherever they are. We devote ourselves to this goal in all possible ways, including this one which consists in noting down on paper some truths that can, in their turn and with simplicity, touch hearts.

"What would we not try to do to awaken a soul to what is unique and great! The divine service offers a wealth of resources, which we use to this end as we see fit. Plunge inwardly, thirsting heart, and come rejuvenate yourself at the divine source. It is inexhaustible in its blessings; wisdom consists precisely in admitting this and being satisfied with it. Blessed are those who have understood this and who are progressing each day a little more towards this sublime source. We support them according to our divine principles and constant blessings."
