This long process at the heart of the messages brought you towards the highly spiritualised person of your Master. Many of our brothers are attached to the human person and do not go further beyond appearances. Dwelling on this aspect of him distorts the situation. To grow spiritually is to be united with the Master's heart in a quest requiring a lot of work on oneself. Wanting to approach him at all costs is not a sign of wisdom, when it comes to a mere human impulse that does not result from a truly heartfelt call. Working within oneself towards the development of a true soul-to-soul communication is a sign of greatness on the part of the aspirant.

"Each one follows one's own way, with the means at one's disposal, to enjoy the benefits of our way with its practice and the transmission of divine energy. One benefits from it wherever one may be: very far or close to the human person of one's Master. The novice abhyasi cannot actually assess, at the outset, all that is offered in our Mission.

"How could he? What he derives from it at the spiritual level cannot be assessed easily with the means that he has, as he is restricted to human perceptions. Quite soon, he will understand the importance [of the Mission], as long as he is ready for a true process and driven by an impulse necessary for his elevation. When the moment has come for a soul to progress on a path, it finds the corresponding way where it will be able to open out and progress towards the divine source. All takes place at the right moment; God is Great!"
