Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Wednesday, August 10, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

My child, the impulses of your heart delight us; they divert our attention from the ceaseless complaints of humans who generally remember us only when they are not well. Expressions of love and gratitude are appreciated; you can believe it. They draw all our attention, as shown through these messages, by giving them a special tone. Simplicity and spontaneity characterise these messages, which will touch hearts much more than elaborate formulas.

"The ways of God are open to hearts that have understood the need for this simplicity. It is by surrendering to His power and His love that they offer their best. Throughout these writings, this long process of your heart towards ours has expressed how love, in its most subtle vibration, can be so very beneficial. The most hardened of our aspirants has a secret garden waiting to be sought and explored, even if it is not yet the case.

"It is in it that the truth is concealed. Step by step, we try to accompany him and bring him to this discovery. All his past experiences and his most fanciful aspirations will not hold in the face of this achievement. While it grows in him, wisdom will make him consider life differently; there is the secret of a rewarding and sound spiritual process. Repressing the impulses of the heart slows down progress. This condition is decisive in such an ascent. May all our readers acquire this inclination of the heart to love, and may they receive in exchange what we have to offer for their progress, according to their deepest yearning in this aspect."
