Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Saturday, August 13, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

Have confidence in life. All has its raison d'être, you know this; your ordeals are not useless. One must surrender to the Divine unreservedly. Surrender entails complete availability and acceptance; it is the price it takes for everything to take on its full meaning and to become constructive. So far, your life, in this respect, has been a long testing period to reinforce in you the decisive aspect of this incarnation. When you leave this world, you will be able to make an assessment of this incarnation and to note the results of your efforts, while leaving aside regrets for all that it did not allow you to carry out.

"Never lose sight of your principal objective; it is the surest. All the rest is illusory here below. Carry on your road as well as possible, while keeping present in you the real aspect of life. Remain united with us through the heart and benefit from your asset, thus advancing as serenely as possible while accepting your fate. There are positive facets: would you note down these messages if you could rove the world in pursuit of big thrills? It seems not. This is about your choice, my child, and it suits you. Only it matters, since it responds to your true nature. Your moments of escape towards other spaces are not accessible to all; they are not included in tourist guides that make humans dream of voyages to the most distant places, which they find very charming. For a long time, your life has taken on another meaning. Do your level best, my child; nothing is easy for you. We are by your side. Be blessed."
