Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Monday, August 15, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

Come and take refuge within yourself, in this space of peace and love where your true nature can express itself without fear, and where the miasmas of this world are inoperative. Cultivate this rare energy that is referred to so many times throughout these pages. In the future, there will be an era of victorious love. Consequently, how could these writings, destined in the long run for the faithful seekers in our way, not be suffused with this love? Those of the present already made a choice, which corresponds to their state of soul and which prepares them for an unprecedented change. In the end, everything possible will indeed be done to contribute to it significantly.

"Souls are thirsty for the Divine. Man, conscious or not of this established fact, sometimes vainly seeks a palliative for this lack. All seems to be in league against him: ordeals of various kinds constitute, for humans, the largest breeding ground to meet this requirement. Suffering, whatever its cause, refines vibrations; it is the very principle of evolution.

"Your heart, my child, is the ideal receptacle for these messages. Life did not spare it; it suffered, it loved and fought to face up to the multiple torments generated by a process specific for its evolution. In finding its way, its Master, it found peace. It knows it is guided and loved, and moreover, chosen for a mission consisting in receiving what our hearts inspire in it.

"Things have come full circle, so people say in this circumstance. May it complete its process in serenity. It is not always easy to revel in this state. Life is there, present, and it unceasingly upsets the serenity of the best-equipped people.

All our brothers are accompanied on their path, although we cannot spare them everything; they have our ceaseless blessings."
