Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Thursday, August 18, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

You are my blessed daughter, and for this reason, you have the advantages and the disadvantages of the situation. Your love does not fluctuate according to what you experience in life; it is limpid like a cloudless sky unaffected by turbulences occurring here and there. This kind of love is of a rare essence, which makes hearts fragrant that are eager to be nourished with it. This long process through the messages will have focused on human weaknesses, but also on the potential possessed by humanity as a whole. Such potential prepares it, in spite of everything, for a future that will raise it above the miasmas of the current world. Everything possible must be done to let the best emerge from all beings, in spite of themselves, if need be.

"The positive must emerge from the current cesspit where men and women are sinking, grappling with the torments of a mad system contrary to any codes of ethics. Our role is not to act as moralisers, but to draw attention to what drives humanity on the road to ruin under the pretext of freeing them from constraints of all kinds. It is nearing a crucial point of its history where all can plunge into horror. What will be the outcome? It is up to each person to wonder about their life, its ultimate goal and the motivations that can make them act in the desirable direction.

"We can never insist enough on this essential point that is capable of facilitating the advent of a revived humanity – one that will have passed a critical stage, granting it another dimension of consciousness. We will keep acting from this perspective. May all our brothers pull themselves together and take part in this salutary movement; time is short."
